

Character biography: ARIA.

She is a young girl around 15/18 (no one knows her true age), the illegitimate daughter of two nobles who live in the Palaces. None should have seen her, so she was locked up in in her bedroom for the first years of her life, but then she was abandoned in the slums and left to die. However, a man named Tubal-Cain saved her. She grew up as his daughter, sharing the hate against the nobles and waiting for their revenge against all of them. He taught to her how to use knives and poison to kill, protect herself, and be independent.

After discovering where her parents were, she killed the father with his new wife that abandon her, while her true mother escaped and disappeared. Until she finds the mother, she will not be satisfied.

She hates to be bored, and she still acts like a little girl. Indeed, there's always someone playing some game with her. It doesn't matter if she loses or wins; she cares only about being with someone and having fun. To oppose loneliness when she's alone, she talks to a compass connected with a small chain to her belt. Tubal-Cain convinced her that with that compass she would find her mother, so every day she asks for direction to take and talk to the compass about her mother.

In her free time, she organizes creepy tea parties with puppets, giving them poisoned cups, then imagining the effects of the poison. All of the puppets, that remind her of the only gift received by his parents, in the end are dismembered ruthlessly, giving her joy thinking that she will do the same to her mother. She wears a white oversized shirt, a red and black skirt, and high-heeled shoes to show everyone that she's not a kid, and if someone calls her little girl, she gets angry and kills him: only Tubal-Cain can call her "little girl".

She usually has lipstick and other makeup, but sometimes she sleeps too much and forgets to put makeup on, going out with messy hair; when she notices it, she insists someone buy her something sweet even if she has a bag with candies and chocolate given from Tubal-Cain as rewards for every time she obeys him.
